In 2019, the Town and Village of Woodstock, Vermont launched a bold process: Our Woodstock, Our Future. The community planning and visioning process was designed to bring Woodstock community members together to explore what they want for the future of the community and how to get there.

Led by a local steering committee, the process was designed to build on past community planning and visioning conversations and the many projects and organizations already moving Woodstock forward. At the same time, Our Woodstock, Our Future was designed to bring new voices to the table and identify a shared vision and priorities.

Our Process

- Community members shared more than 3,000 hopes, wishes, needs, and action ideas to make Woodstock stronger.
- From those ideas, we identified one shared vision and eight major community values or themes, along with existing efforts.
- The Steering Committee and community members organized and prioritized ideas and developed ideas for specific projects.
- We identified overarching action priorities that support multiple themes, or will build the community capacity to implement the vision overall.

ABOUT THIS DOCUMENT

This document is not a master plan or a scientific study. It is a resource and guide for the many groups and leaders who will help Woodstock move forward.

Use the Vision to: Guide overall direction and investments for the town, groups and organizations; improve alignment of efforts and policies

Use the Actions to: Understand community needs and priorities; inspire and prompt thinking about potential activities

Woodstock will be a welcoming and creative community that balances the best of small town living and world-class opportunities for all. We commit to sustaining our unique character and quality of life – now and tomorrow.

COMMUNITY VISION

Healthy Environment

We will protect the health of our natural and built environment.

We will enhance our historic character and small town feel, our rural beauty and natural resources. We will build a stronger and more resilient Woodstock, use resources responsibly, and address our changing climate.

Thriving Local Economy

We will grow a diverse local economy around our unique village and community assets.

We will support our local businesses and entrepreneurs, create good jobs with livable wages, and protect our iconic village. We will provide diverse offerings for residents, visitors, and nearby towns.

To achieve this vision, we will value and work toward:

Activity & Creativity There are diverse arts and cultural events, shopping and restaurants, recreation and opportunities to strengthen our minds and bodies.

Affordability & Accessibility We offer housing, food, recreation, transportation, childcare and shopping options to fit all budgets and needs.

Diversity & Friendliness We are a diverse community. All ages, income levels, abilities, races and ethnicities, genders and sexualities are welcomed, included, and have equitable opportunities.

Strong Institutions & Services We offer quality schools, healthcare facilities, social services, libraries and cultural facilities. We have good roads, utilities and transportation options.

ACTION PRIORITIES

Community members shared thousands of individual ideas for activities, projects and actions. There are endless other ways to make Woodstock's vision real, and many players engaged in doing so. Rather than weighting one group's priorities over another or deciding certain themes are more important than others, we share two sets of overarching priorities that we believe can maximize progress toward our whole vision at once.

CALL TO ACTION: OVERARCHING PRIORITIES

We call on all community members, groups, boards and committees to advance these priorities in your own lives and work, and to work together to make bigger investments and progress.

SYSTEMS + CAPACITY

We believe that Woodstock most needs a commitment to this vision, and investment in the culture and capacity to collaborate on implementation. If we can collectively commit to the vision, build capacity for implementation, and focus on collaborating, then we believe Woodstock can scale up its impact and progress.

HIGH IMPACT ACTIONS

When we organized ideas by the eight major vision themes, a clear set of priority activities and strategies emerged. They weren't necessarily the most popular action ideas, but they impact theme after theme. These ideas have "co-benefits" -- they might have one primary purpose, but also improve numerous other desired outcomes and community values. If we align our actions and invest in these action areas, we can create positive impacts for many people and issues at the same time.

SYSTEMS + CAPACITY

Investments and actions in these three areas will lay the groundwork for more efficient, inclusive, transparent and collaborative progress.

COMMITMENT

Adopt the Vision

We encourage all Woodstock organizations, boards, committees, businesses and leaders to officially adopt and embrace this community vision. Any group or leader can use this vision to guide their work, programs and decisions.

CAPACITY

Build Civic Infrastructure

Civic infrastructure means the systems, connections, and structures that allow people to work together and solve problems. Strategic investments include capacity (such as a community coordinator), stronger communication channels, and access to information.

COLLABORATION

Empower Action

Big change requires new thinking, new partnerships, and new methods. Leaders and community members can support quick, efficient progress by creating unusual partnerships, supporting experimentation (including potential failure), and empowering others.

HIGH IMPACT ACTIONS

These six action areas each positively impact most vision themes. Investments in these areas (small or large, municipal or private) can have exponential benefits.

Price Control

Preserving affordable homes, retail/commercial space, and land is a long-term investment in people and places.

Communications

Centralized, improved communications will help people access the resources and programs that already exist.

Walk/Bike Routes

When it's safe and easy to walk and bike, people can also socialize, shop, volunteer, exercise, work, and reduce energy use.

Welcome Programs

Welcome info, programs and friendly faces quickly get visitors and new residents oriented and engaged.

Resident Benefits

Year-round residents need affordable goods + services that meet their needs -- or discounts to make things affordable.

Community Activities

More (free) community activities, events, and traditions offer social, economic, health, environmental and other benefits.

VISION THEMES + ACTION IDEAS

In addition to the overarching priorities that can help advance the vision overall, there are many ideas worth exploring and many additional details to the community's vision for the future. In the following section, we share detailed briefs for each vision theme, which can serve as resources for groups working on these areas.

RESOURCE: VISION BRIEFS

Before you read and use these briefs, it's helpful to know what you'll find and how to interpret them. For more information on our process and methods, see Methods + Activities.

OVERARCHING PRIORITIES

As for the vision overall, we share overarching needs and focus areas that can advance, support or improve most other details or potential actions.

BIG CHANGE + QUICK ACTIONS

In our final Vision to Action Forum, breakout groups reviewed all the action ideas by theme and identified top ideas for big change and quick actions. These tangible projects are the best thinking of participants -- not community consensus.

DESIRED OUTCOMES

Visions are broad and aspirational. Desired outcomes describe what the vision means to people, and what it will look like in Woodstock once realized. We drafted the desired outcomes after grouping and reframing the hopes people shared.

ACTION AREAS, IDEAS + WISHES

People shared comments and hopes ranging from specific personal wishes to innovative ideas for change. We synthesized major action areas that could move Woodstock toward each desired outcome, which represent community priorities. We share a sample of personal wishes to provide inspiration and spark new ideas.

ACTIVITY + CREATIVITY

PROCESS OVERVIEW

In 2019, the Town and Village of Woodstock, Vermont launched a bold process: Our Woodstock, Our Future. The community planning and visioning process was designed to bring Woodstock community members together to explore what they want for the future of the community and how to get there. Led by a local steering committee, the process was designed to build on past community planning and visioning conversations and the many projects and organizations already moving Woodstock forward. At the same time, Our Woodstock, Our Future was designed to bring new voices to the table and identify a shared vision and priorities. The result? The community vision on the previous page, priority strategies for eight vision themes, and hundreds of additional action ideas.

GOALS

At the outset of the project, the Steering Committee identified the following goals.

Process goals

- Achieve broad, diverse participation
- Communicate clearly and openly with the community
- Recognize and build on assets and existing efforts
- Make decisions, prioritize projects, and move to action

Community goals

- Build new relationships and common ground
- Increase community participation (long term)
- Increase Woodstock's vibrancy (long term)

PROJECT TEAM

Community visioning and engagement takes many hands and many partners. Community leaders formed a volunteer Steering Committee for the project and engaged a consultant to facilitate the process.

METHODS + ACTIVITIES

The community visioning process was a 9-month exercise in gathering, distilling, drilling down, synthesizing, reflecting, and iterating. We started the process by first casting the broadest net possible -- reaching as many community members as we could and collecting as many ideas as we could. We then spent hours organizing ideas and identifying themes and areas of common ground. The final vision and action ideas truly reflect the words and wishes of the community. It's not the vision of any one person or group, but we hope that everyone who participated will recognize something of their personal hopes in the final vision and many actions that will improve their experience of Woodstock.

PROCESS

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT + EVENTS

From the beginning, we aimed to engage and gather hopes and ideas from as many Woodstock community members as possible -- defined as broadly as possible. We wanted to hear from and engage full-time and part-time residents, youth and seniors, business owners and workers, visitors and newcomers. That meant offering a wide variety of times, ways and opportunities to participate. Here's a snapshot of how we did that.

SURVEYS + POLLING

DIGITAL+ ONLINE SURVEY

May - Aug results: ourwoodstockvt.org/survey

We released an in-depth survey asking how people interact with Woodstock, what they love, what they wish, and what their priorities are. Full results (590 responses) and a detailed analysis are available online as a resource to leaders wanting to better understand the community's needs and vision.

EVENT POLLING

We used digital (handheld keypad) polling at the Kickoff and Action Forum to gauge audience priorities and approval of the vision.

QUICK INPUT

POSTCARDS, STICKERS + COASTERS
APRIL - AUG

We printed custom postcards, stickers and drink coasters with our two main vision questions and collected more than 2,000 responses. More than 30 restaurants, bars, businesses, facilities and organizations handed out postcards and put posters on tables. We placed stickers in downtown shop windows so people could read and share their ideas while passing by.

POSTERS

DRAFT VISION REVIEW SEP- OCT

We used large-format posters to share the draft vision and gather input at the Community Picnic + Vision Reveal event and for a week at Norman Williams Public Library. The posters gave a project overview shared the draft vision and asked whether people agreed. Others shared details and asked for action ideas on each theme. People wrote comments and used sticky dots to vote on each.

FROM 3,000 COMMENTS TO 1 VISION

Gathering input and ideas from thousands of community members was the first challenge. Distilling those ideas into a single, shared vision was the second. Community Workshop led the Steering Committee and volunteers through a process to read, organize, interpret and synthesize every comment. Here's a snapshot of how it worked.

ORGANIZATION

Our first step was to gather every single comment, recording, email, survey response, postcard, sticker and drawing and organize them through photos, spreadsheets and files.

Next, we created a team of community readers including the Steering Committee and volunteers. We organized the comments and input into packets, so that each reader saw different types of input, and so that every comment was read by at least two people. Readers used recording sheets to organize the comments into a list of unique visions, wishes, strategies and action ideas.

THEMING

At a workshop in August at Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller National Park, the readers came together to turn the individual comments into a vision.

They wrote each unique vision idea on a sticky note, and then began clustering ideas. Eventually, participants began to identify and name clear clusters -- beautiful village, affordability for residents, or diverse activities.

They kept combining and shuffling, and eventually identified a core set of themes that comprised the community's vision.

VISION DRAFTING + REVIEW

Community Workshop drafted the vision text from the themes and ideas developed at the workshop. The Steering Committee made initial revisions, and then the community weighed in on the draft through event posters, meetings and online review. The vast majority of commenters supported the draft vision as written, but we revised the vision to incorporate changes in emphasis and wording based on what we heard. We then organized the action ideas and specific details under each theme and created a final version.

VISION SCORECARD

FOR PROJECT + POLICY EVALUATION

Use the community vision scorecard on the reverse to ensure that programs, policies, proposals and decisions have the best possible impact on Woodstock's community vision.

INSTRUCTIONS

Identify an idea

Identify a specific project, idea, concept or alternative that you want to evaluate. If you're contrasting options, use one scorecard for each. Write the idea at the top.

Score the vision impact

Evaluate the impact of the idea on each theme from Woodstock's community vision. Refer to the vision for details. It may be hard to score, or a close call -- do your best.

Note impacts

Note particularly positive or negative impacts of the idea on each vision theme.

Add it up + find ways to improve

Add up the total score and use it to consider next steps. See where the idea scored low and high. Then use the scorecard to consider:

- how to change the idea to improve the overall score
- how to boost the impacts for themes that scored lowest
- which option or alternative positively impacts the most themes
- which option or alternative scores highest

TIPS + OPTIONS

Compare over time

Complete this exercise annually or over certain time periods for a major program and see how results change

Compare with others

Ask team or group members to each do the exercise, and then discuss where you disagree

Work together

Complete the exercise as a group and discuss each item, coming to agreement on impacts

Keep going

Don't get bogged down or put too much emphasis on specific scores. The real value of the exercise is thinking about impact.
